WRITING

Anna had a very special reason for getting up early the next day, so she set the alarm clock for 5am. She woke up in a very good mood. Her room was filled with a sun light. The weather today was especially amazing: the sky was clear, the sun was bright and there was no any wind blowing. But the weather was not the reason why Anna felt happy. A few days earlier she was chosen to be a part of an Expedition to Egypt. Today her group flights from the city airport in 11:30 am. ~~Now~~ she just needed to take her bag, documents and get a taxi to the airport. For others it was a simple thing to do, but it wasn't for Anna. She could forget to take anything and remember about it only on her way to somewhere. But she hoped that today everything will be fine. When she dressed up, she took her phone and called a taxi company:

"Taxi? Can I get a car to Victory st building 5?"

"I'm sorry, we don't have any free ~~cars~~ drivers at the moment". She understood that her mistake was that she hadn't ordered a car the day before. Now she had to run on a bus station and catch one of them. Fortunately, the bus station was in five minutes of walking from Anna's place. She got there and spotted the bus she needed. When it got to the station and opened its doors, Anna noticed that it was over crowded. She looked at her watch and decided that she can't wait another. When she was getting into, she touched a ^{few} more

One of them made very angry face and said something like:
"Whatever water you step on it'll..." But Anna didn't hear the ending of the phrase because the bus started to move.

After a two-hour riding, Anna got to her group in the airport.
Maybe sometimes we need to plan and arrange something before it is too late?
