WRITING

The aim of this report is to describe the current trends in the way young people in Russia spend their free time and to suggest how the situation might develop in the future.

Let me start with outlining the changes that have taken place over the last twenty years regarding the way young people in Russia spend their spare time. Since 2003, a lot of new gadgets ~~like tablets, laptops and smartphones~~ have appeared, quickly gaining popularity among young people. The appearance of the Internet resulted in young people abandoning traditional ways of spending free time, like reading or watching TV. Nowadays surfing the Internet and blogging as ways of unwinding become even more widespread.

While some people may say that these changes have been for the worse, I strongly believe that the situation is not so simple. Undoubtedly, modern young people in Russia do not read or walk as much as they did before, but the Internet is by no means what makes them less hard-working and enthusiastic. On the contrary, it provides them with huge amounts of interesting information.

Finally, I would like to make some suggestions on the way the situation may develop in the future. It seems to me that surfing the Internet is likely to remain the most popular way of spending young people's free time, but ^{this} ~~it~~, as I have already said, is not so bad as it may seem.

Оценочные баллы: максимальный – 10 баллов; фактический – 10 баллов.
