WRITING

In recent years, my town has undergone significant changes, and it is still developing. Recently, a town council meeting was held in order to discuss the redesign of the Regent Court as a late-night food quarter. In order to find out how the residents perceived these news and to understand whether such changes are good or bad, I made the current report.

According to the interview of the residents, who live in the street where food quarter is going to be located, not everyone is pleased with such changes. Many people think that the Regent Court should not be redesigned, as there are a lot of families with small children living in this district, and such food quarter can disturb them at night. Also they think that such places are overcrowded and there can be dangerous. Despite these objections, there are people who are looking forward for the food quarter opening, as they think it will make their street not such empty place. They think it can contribute to the infrastructure of the town.

If I were in power, I would suggest redesigning the Court, but it would work only during the day. So everyone would be pleased - those who want to have a rest at night and those who want more interesting places to visit.

Overall, it is important to contribute to the urban changes, as it makes town more attractive for tourists and people who are considering moving there.
